LOUISVILLE.

FRIDAY MORNING..... JUNE 21.

Southern Rights Nomination.

For State Treasurer,
GOBRIAS TERRY, of Todd.

Fight for Liberty.

As we view the result of the election just closed for members of Congress cannot be known, but in any event the responsibility resting upon each friend of constitutional liberty, and the duty imposed by such responsibility, are the same; and we are sure the innumerable determination, the lofty spirit, the inflexible will of the loyal men of Kentucky will not be changed by any temporary triumph or momentary reverse.

"The price of liberty," said the great JACKSON, "is eternal vigilance," and the gallant sons of illustrious sires, worthy to wear the name of Kentuckians, will teach those who would trifle with their rights or attempt to rob them of their liberties, that the spirit of those great men, whose deeds have a halo of imperishable glory over Kentucky, and whose achievements are recorded on the brightest pages of American history, still live and guard their tombs from desecration by the mimics of an usurped usurper and despot.

The friends of the Administration may have succeeded in decieving and cheating those whose honesty of purpose is such that they little dream of the art and machinations of men who have no principles, executive or legislative, or Administration and the majority of the members recently elected to Congress are, we believe, little reason to doubt, either openly or covertly, friendly to the Administration, and will be easily induced to associate with those enemies of the country by whom the Journal admits that LINCOLN was made.

But day by day, hour by hour, for weeks, have the people been more fully realizing the nature and extent of their danger; and with each development of the "hair-brained and狂ious" policy of the Administration, the inevitable tendency of which is to drench the land in blood, and separate still wider the States comprising the two Confederacies now existing within the limits of the old Union, the cause of the Constitution, the rights of the States, and the liberty of the people has been strengthened.

As these events roll on upon us, will the voters of this State be convinced of the faithlessness of those to whom they have trusted, as well as the sincerity and honesty of those whose warnings have been so far unheeded and their counsels disregarded.

The neutrality of Kentucky was first proclaimed as the policy of the Submissists, and, finally, the Legislature refusing to permit the people to act upon the questions dividing them into parties, was accepted by the Southern Rights men as the choice of evils brought upon the State by the recency or warlike of members of the General Assembly—was accepted by the Southern Rights men in good faith. It thus became by the consent of all parties, the policy of the State; and with scarcely an exception the members sent to Congress are committed by positive pledges to stand by it; but we know that some of them at the same time are committed to the support of the Administration, and that those who trusted their professed adherence to neutrality will find themselves egregiously cheated.

A prominent member of the Union-Southern-Loyalists party in Louisville, recently told a friend of ours that his party never intended to stand by neutrality; and as far as the leaders are concerned he was unquestionably correct.

But we will let the dead past bury its dead; and profiting by the errors into which we have unwittingly stumbled, we will now press forward to the mark of the prize, with increased zeal, with renewed energy, and with an unshaken faith in the justice of our cause and an undimmed confidence in its success.

Remembering that "he who is snared who hath his quare just," we feel that our triumph before an intelligent and free people cannot be a matter of doubt—that it is only a question of time in regard to the overthrow of the tricksters who are endeavoring to deliver the people of Kentucky into the hands of a despotism that would hold them as subjects and treat their State is a prey province.

Then let every man in Kentucky who would not have the State reduced to the condition of Maryland, who will not consent to have our free government subverted, who does not wish the establishment of a great overshadowing and irresponsible despotism at Washington, who believes that the independence of the Confederate States should be acknowledged and peace restored to the country, who in the last resort prefers the South to the North—let all such gird on their armor to-day, and devote the next six weeks to the cause of the country.

If, however, the Company shall make no attempt to remove the obstacles with the first six months, then the contract becomes void and void; or should it happen that, having removed the obstacles, the Company has not commenced operations at the end of the eighteen months, then the Government is at liberty to contract with another.

Third.—The Company is to pay $30,000 for all articles of use that belonged to the late Transit Company.

Fourth.—The Government is to pay $1,000 per annum for the use of Virgin Bay road, for the term of the contract.

Fifth.—Government is to receive $1 for each passenger, $1 for each $1 for all below the age of twelve years.

Then, to arms! friends of Kentucky! The time is not long; the issues are momentous; the liberties of the people are at stake; the necessity for earnest and faithful action is pressing and overpowering.

Let candidates be announced at once in every county and district for the Legislature—let the oldest, wisest, ablest, best men everywhere be put in the field—and no matter how hopeless apparently the prospect is, let each candidate be supported as if the fate of an empire depended on his success.

In the six weeks next to come the people must be fully informed. Newspapers should be distributed everywhere broadcast; speeches and documents may be used with advantage; and every man who can talk, owes it to the State to enter at once upon an active canvas in behalf of the candidates of our party.

To arm, then, friends of Kentucky! And may the right win!

Fourth.—The four counties in Northern, not Western, Virginia, whose people partake of all the characteristics and sympathies of those of Ohio and Pennsylvania, and whose interests are really connected with those States, under the influence of demagogues and arrant knaves, backed up by Federal gold and Federal bayonets, have determined that the majority of inhabitants of all the voters in the State, who declared for separation from the North, are union with the South were, not wrong, and assumed to themselves the right, not only to govern themselves, which is all the people of the Confederate States claim, but also the right to govern the rest of the State!

These malcontents have assembled in a self-constituted Convention at Wheeling, the members not even being elected by the counties they claim to represent, and passed an ordinance deeming that the State o

Virginia has rebelled against itself, and asserting for themselves the right to elect a Governor and State Legislature, by which to govern the rest of the Commonwealth!

That is what the "epoch report" of the "Confederate" at Wheeling will do.

We trust the reader will for his own satisfaction look on the map of Virginia for Wheeling, the situation of which as to the balance of the State, is necessary to a full understanding of the absurd movement which the Lincoln organ in Kentucky have directly or indirectly sympathized with.

These Kentucky Lincolnites claim that the majority in the Federal Government, by their rule, right or wrong, and therefore BIRCHFIELD ought to be supported.

The same men say the majority in the States should not rule, and therefore the few hundred men of ostensibly represented at this bogus convention at Wheeling should control the great State of Virginia, and pass laws for that renowned Commonwealth.

It is, if the people of the county of Harlan, in Kentucky, should, in mass convention, decide that MAGOFFIN had abandoned the State, that he had been rebuked against himself and the people of Harlan county would elect a Governor, other than a legislator, a legislator, &c., and that the loyal men of Kentucky will not be changed by any temporary triumph or momentary reverse.

"The price of liberty," said the great JACKSON, "is eternal vigilance," and the gallant sons of illustrious sires, worthy to wear the name of Kentuckians, will teach those who would trifle with their rights or attempt to rob them of their liberties, that the spirit of those great men, whose deeds have a halo of imperishable glory over Kentucky, and whose achievements are recorded on the brightest pages of American history, still live and guard their tombs from desecration by the mimics of an usurped usurper and despot.

It is to support these factious in the vicinity of Wheeling that LINCOLN is sending troops by thousands into Virginia to arrest those men who have been captured to address to the public, and to remove the same from the State.

It is, a direst, it will purify the body, and remove the scum from the skin, which is the most sceptical of its wonderful strengthening and invigorating properties.
